

CREIGHTON CASE UP AGAIN

Disposition of Working Girls' Home Request the Question.

CALLS THREE JUDGES TO BENCH

Also Engages the Services of Number of Lawyers—Amount of This is One Hundred and Sixty Thousand Dollars.

The combined legal wisdom of Judges Troup, Redick and Estelle is being brought to bear on the last fight, or what is supposed to be the last fight, over the estate of the late Count John A. Creighton.

The suit now up has its little ramifications and subquestions, but the main proposition is the disposition of $160,000. This was left to establish a working girls' home, but the provision was held invalid by Judge Leslie in county court.

Of the right to appeal is sustained the question of the validity of the bequest must then be settled and with that disposed of in a way favorable to the proposed working girls' home there is a still further question as to the amount which shall go to the home and to the heirs.

Deeply Involved Question. This last question is a deeply involved one. Count Creighton, it will be remembered, bequeathed $1,500,000 in specific amounts to Creighton university, the proposed working girls' home and to various other beneficiaries including relatives.

Over this there were several divergencies of opinion. The working girls' home bequest was $20,000, which is a little over 1 per cent of the whole $4,000,000 estate. The residue after the $1,500,000 of specific bequests comes to $2,500,000 and 1 per cent of this would be $25,000. It is claimed by the other side that the proportion should be estimated as the specific bequest to the home is to the total of specific bequests and in this way it is figured that the total which ought to go to the working girls' home would be $100,000.

Judge Redick's court room where the first arguments are being heard has an imposing air. There are besides the three judges lined up in august array, two tables piled high with law books and there are plenty of attorneys interested.

Work of all the departments will be recorded in the history, together with technical descriptions of the state exhibits, showing what each state presented and the work accomplished by the experiment stations.

The government exhibit, the industrial exhibits and woman's work all come in for a chapter, and the booklet will close with a chapter on the outlook for future expositions.

The sub-committees are composed of members of the executive committee, of which W. W. Bingham is chairman, and are as follows: Finance—M. L. Learned, Thomas W. Blackburn, Victor Rosewater.

Speakers—Victor Rosewater, Cadet Taylor, Thomas W. Blackburn.

Registration—T. J. McVitte, Cadet Taylor, E. F. Schurig.

Press—A. W. Johnson, Vaclav Buresh, M. L. Learned.

Organization—E. F. Brailey, E. F. Schurig, T. J. McVitte.

All the members of the committees were present and great confidence in the outcome of the campaign was expressed.

Reports were received from several members of the organization committee—large of good work being done. In two of the wards, the Fourth and Sixth, the councilman candidates have already appointed precinct committees to look after their own immediate neighborhood.

Ed Leeder and H. E. Ostrom are the nominees in these wards.

Beginning Saturday night, ward meetings will be held, several each night. The locations of those to be held Saturday evening have not as yet been decided upon.

What a Difference Few Weeks Makes

Just Before Election Board of Equalization Really Transacts Business When it Meets.

Once every month during the year the city council has met as a board of equalization. Protests without number have been entered, but all have been denied and every plan of assessment, where street improvement work has been ordered, has been sustained.

But this was in times other than a campaign season.

Wednesday the board met again, and in this last session before the spring election the plan of assessment for opening Twenty-seventh street between Fowler and Grand avenues was readily rejected.

This plan is the only one which has been rejected during the year, but the demonstrators on the board wanted to garner in the votes that can be cast by the two-score owners who objected, and it was found to be an easy matter to place the plan of assessment on file.

Gasoline Burns Mother and Girl

Mixed with Coal Oil in Stove Tank, it Explodes and Causes Serious Injury.

Mixing coal oil with gasoline by mistake caused Mrs. William Kemp, residing at Twentieth and Ohio streets, and her 12-year-old daughter to be seriously burned Thursday morning.

Some days ago Mr. Kemp filled the gasoline tank on the stove and made a mistake and used kerosene. He poured it back into the kerosene can, but there was some gasoline left in the tank, which caused a mixture and this mixture exploded Thursday morning when little Miss Kemp used oil from the kerosene can to start a fire in the range.

There was an explosion and Mrs. Kemp and the little girl were badly burned. They were attended by Drs. Jessem and Newell and taken to the hospital Thursday afternoon.

BRIGADIER GENERAL FOR THE NEBRASKA GUARD

Election Called for April 27, with Colonel Storck the Only Candidate in Sight.

A Nebraska guard election for the purpose of choosing a brigadier general has been called for April 27. So far as known, Colonel Storck of the First is the only candidate. This office has not existed in Nebraska for six years, General Barry being the last to hold it.

When Adjutant General Culver prepared a revision of the Nebraska military code, he abolished the office of brigadier general of the guard for the reason that with only two regiments of infantry, a battery of artillery and a troop of cavalry, the formation seemed unwieldy with the adjutant general's department staff and the brigadier general's field staff. At that time the office was appointive. Now, under Adjutant General Hartigan, the office of brigadier general has been revived and made elective, although the strength of the guard has been reduced by the abolition of the artillery and the cavalry.

INCOMPLETE EXPENSE BILLS

Documents Furnished Shippers by Railroads Being Mailed to Commercial Club.

Incomplete expense bills furnished shippers by the railroad companies are being mailed to the Omaha Commercial club to use as illustrations of how the transportation companies send expense bills when the National Industrial Traffic League makes its fight to have the companies furnish complete ones.

The league believes it is the duty of the railroads to furnish the right of receivers of freight to insist upon being furnished with expense bills giving all necessary information.

The Commercial club of Omaha has been asked and is to assist the league. The railroads have been requested to instruct their agents that all expense bills show originating point, date of shipment, car numbers in case of transfer, number and weight of packages and rate information in full; also show separately any items for switching, demurrage or other miscellaneous charge and where such charge originated.

It is said Omaha shippers have some good illustrations of incomplete expense bills which no one could ever check.

Did Banker With Black Eye Push Governor's Pen?

New Reason Offered Why Shallenberg Approved the Daylight Saloon Bill.

An explanation is offered by a prominent Omaha attorney as to why Governor Shallenberg was forced to sign the daylight saloon bill, which is even more lucid than the explanation offered by the governor himself.

According to the attorney the zeal displayed by the temperance people was inspired and they fought doubly hard, because they saw an Omaha banker coming out of the governor's office with a black eye. The argument that this banker had a battered lamp was used to good effect before the governor and doubtless had much weight.

A few days ago the vice president of one of Omaha's largest national banks had the misfortune to slip on the marble floor of his banking house and striking his face on a rail, discolored his left eye in perfect resemblance to one which had been blackened by the other fellow's fist.

This banker, with the vice president of another national bank, was the first to see Governor Shallenberg Monday morning. The hour was early and few were waiting to see the executive.

The bankers remained for almost an hour in private conference. Men and women gathered in the outer office, most of them being temperance people.

Finally, after a long wait, the bankers stepped out of the governor's office. The black eye of the vice president was noticed at once. Almost in one voice half a dozen people said as the bankers passed out: "That's the kind of men who are coming down from Omaha today to ask the governor to veto the bill—see that black eye; that's what fighting whisky does when you get a black eye in the evening. There's a couple of the men who are typical of the class who conduct the saloons of Omaha."

And the bankers passed out into the sunlight not knowing that they were mistaken for bold, bad men.

Florence May Get Mail Men

Petitions for Letter Carrier Service and to Be Made Branch of Omaha Postoffice.

There is a strong probability that Florence will soon be enjoying the metropolitan advantages of free letter carrier delivery.

At the instance of Postmaster Thomas of Omaha the Florence people have petitioned the Postoffice department asking that Florence be made a branch station of Omaha, which will give it the same privileges that the Omaha office now enjoys regarding free carrier delivery and office hours.

Florence has a population of 1,500 and enjoys the same metropolitan advantages of electric cars, street lights and water system that Omaha does and only lacks a free letter delivery service to give it the same advantages that are accorded to Omaha and its suburb of Dundee.

It is intimated that the people of Benson are also making a move toward free carrier delivery as a branch of the Omaha postoffice.

VETERAN SAVES SONS OF VETERAN BY HANGING JURY

Stands Out Against Eleven Other Men in Case of Wetherford Brothers.

John Vrowman, a civil war veteran, successfully hung the jury which had before it the case of George and Bud Wetherford, accused of blinding Ford Smith, a colored man, in one eye.

The jury took the case Wednesday noon, came in late in the afternoon to report inability to agree, and being sent back by Judge Sears, spent the night in the jury room. Thursday morning at 8:30 Judge Sears led the jurors to the courtroom.

It being apparent that Vrowman would stand out as long as anybody or other agreed to hold a fort in the said civil war.

Vrowman is deaf and his fellow jurors say he did not hear much of the evidence. He managed to answer questions successfully when being examined for jury qualifications and the prosecution thinks that Vrowman heard E. Gorton, attorney for the defendants and himself a veteran, refer to the fact that Mrs. Wetherford, who sat by her sons, is the widow of a veteran.

The jury stood eleven to one for conviction throughout, the one, of course, being Vrowman. The defendants will have another trial.

FEW CENTS WILL BUY YOU SUMMER VACATION IN OMAHA

Plan of Exploiting City and Entertaining Visitors Devised by Commercial Club.

Vacations for 25 to 30 cents will be possible for Omahans this summer.

Such vacations have always been possible, but the Commercial club is to issue a leaflet telling people of the city, as well as strangers who visit the city, how to secure the bargain-counter vacations, which will be genuine if they are cheap.

The booklets will be distributed so widely that the visitors to the city will be met on the trains before they reach Omaha, taken by the hand, located in a hotel and then led out to enjoy a street car ride, which will cost 10 cents.

The brochure tells where to catch the street cars to go to the parks, what may be seen in them, where the points of interest are about the city, from the court house, where the jurors are kept, to the terminal elevators, where $1 wheat is stored.

The Commercial club in exploiting Omaha is also to provide a card for the ready-reference of Omaha business men and plain, every-day citizens who want to hang about Omaha but do not have the figures at hand to prove things. The card is going to be valuable. It has taken weeks to get all the figures condensed into a small space. It tells everything from the actual population to how much chop suet is consumed, data covering the live stock industry, grain, wool and merchandising.

People past middle life usually have some kidney or bladder disorder that saps the vitality, which is naturally lower in old age. Foley's Kidney Remedy corrects urinary troubles, stimulates the kidneys, and restores strength and vigor. It cures uric acid troubles by strengthening the kidneys so they will strain out the uric acid that settles in the muscles and joints, causing rheumatism. Sold by all druggists.
